Commencement speaker named:

Chan Hahn, the Owens-Illinois professor of management at the University, will be the University's fall commencement speaker.

Hahn, who was named the University's second Distinguished Teaching Professor last May, is nationally known for his work in the fields of purchasing and production/operations management. In 1988 he was awarded the University's first endowed professorship, which was created by a $225,000 gift from Owens-Illinois Inc. to the College of Business Administration.

The professor has taught at the University since 1970 and served as chairperson of the management department from 1973-86. He holds a bachelor's degree from Yonsei University and master's and doctoral degrees from Ohio State University.

Hahn has published numerous articles about production and purchasing and has been an associate editor of the Journal of Purchasing and Materials Management, a leading business journal.

Graduation ceremonies for about 1,000 students are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 22, in Anderson Arena.

COCO sponsors comedy show:

The University comedy troupe, Screw's Loose, will perform in the Off-Campus Student Center, Friday Nov. 30, at 7:30 p.m. The performance is sponsored by the Commuter Off-Campus Organization (COCO) and is open to all. There will be no admission fee.

Farces performed:

Two farces from the Middle Ages, "The Second Shepherd's Play" and "Peter Quill's Shenanigans," will be presented by the University's Theatre group at 8 p.m. today through Nov. 30 and Dec. 1-2 at 2 p.m.

In "Peter Quill's Shenanigans," a poor but fast-talking 'lawyer' dupes others until he gets his comeuppance. The shenanigans in "The Second Shepherd's Play" culminate in the shepherds' reverent visit to the Nativity.

Both plays provide humor and music fitting of the holiday season. The plays are being staged in 405 University Hall. Admission is $2 at the door.

Weather

Showers then cloudy:

Today, showers and thunderstorms in the morning, then mostly cloudy and windy. Morning high in the lower 60s, becoming colder during day. Chance of rain 80 percent. Tonight, cloudy with a chance of rain mixed with snow. Low in the lower 30s. Chance of precipitation 40 percent. Thursday, clearing. High in the upper 30s.

Shipping Out Into the Gulf:

BG student prepares for Gulf duty

by Jennifer Taday
staff writer

Even though Operation Desert Shield is more than 5,000 miles away, the crisis is hitting closer to home for at least seven University students who have been called to active duty.

Minutes before 5 p.m. Monday, a University student was sitting next to his phone drinking a beer while waiting to answer his call to duty.

Charles Ross, sophomore criminal justice major, who is also a member of the 641st Quartermaster Detachment of Covington, O., said his Army National Guard unit was placed on official alert Saturday.

"My dad woke me up and showed me an article in the paper and later in the afternoon our unit clerk informed me on what was going on," Ross said. "I kind of figured we'd go sooner or later."

At exactly 5 p.m. his phone rang, and when Ross answered, his expectation was confirmed — he was told by another Guard member he was to report to his unit Tuesday.

Although he was informed of this possibility upon enlistment, Ross said he never actually expected it to happen.

"My intentions when I enlisted in January 1987 were to have the military as a career, but I sure didn't see this [deployment to the Gulf] as a possibility in the National Guard," he said.

"I really don't want to go because of school, but I'm not going to cop out [go AWOL]," he added. "I'm going to go and do my duty because I signed up and it's my responsibility."

"I packed everything Sunday and it's all waiting," Ross said. "I also talked to my friends and family while I was home."

Ross said his unit is a water

Conservatives elect Major as Britain's prime minister

LONDON (AP) — John Major, endorsed by Margaret Thatcher as the politician closest to her heart, was elected by the Conservative Party Tuesday night to succeed her as prime minister.

Major, 47, fell two votes short of winning a majority in voting among the 372 Conservative Party members of Parliament, but his two opponents quickly conceded defeat and the party confirmed Major as the winner.

Thatcher, ending 11 and one-half years in power, intends to submit her resignation to Queen Elizabeth II this morning, and Major would then be called to lead the government.

Major, the chancellor of the exchequer, emerged from his official residence at 11 Downing St. Tuesday night smiling and holding hands with his wife, Norma. He had first accepted congratulations from Thatcher, who stepped in from the prime minister's official residence next door.

Major received 185 votes, two short of a majority. Former Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine received 131 and Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd had 56.

Hurd and Heseltine conceded within minutes, and party officials declared Major elected.

"It is a very exciting thing to become leader of the Conservative Party, and particularly exciting, I think, to follow one of the most remarkable leaders the Conservative Party has ever had," Major said.

"Our job now I think is quite clear. We are going to unite totally and absolutely, and we're going to win the next general election," said Major, who will be the youngest British prime minister in this century.

Thatcher said she resigned to let someone from the Cabinet stand against Heseltine. Major and Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd both joined the race, but before the vote her aides spread the word that she was backing Major.

Voting locally insures rights Rally urges student action

by J.J. Thompson
staff writer

University leaders warned students last night city officials would not respect their rights until students registered to vote in Bowling Green.

The warning was part of "Put it to a vote: student power," an Undergraduate Student Government-sponsored rally encouraging students to vote locally.

Rally speakers focused on the East Merry-Frazee block party issue while encouraging students to register, explaining problems with city police could end if they registered to vote.

"I encourage you to stand for your rights," said Steven Lab, assistant criminal justice professor. "The need to [to do this] can be highlighted by the events at East Merry and Frazee."

Student Rights Activism Coalition leader Kevin Turner kicked off the rally, telling a crowd of about 110 students how he helped form SRAC in response to police actions during the East Merry and Frazee Street block parties.

The group tried to work with city officials to have an investigation of police actions during the event, he said, but did not receive any support.

"We were met with belittlement," Turner said. "We were confused with what to do next." Turner said students need to take action since the city failed to respond to their requests.

"We have to start taking control," he said.

Lab also emphasized the importance of registering to vote in the city.

"I urge you to register in this town," he said. "We can change things through the electorate."

Lab said students need to register due to a "double standard" the city police have been giving students by enforcing the same situations with students and local citizens differently.

New R-5 zone not sufficient

In a world where a lack of adequate housing has brought marches upon Washington, media outcries and countless fundraisers, government in Bowling Green should be careful to provide every group — including Greeks — adequate room for housing.

Last Monday city council set aside an area just east of town for future greek housing. The new R-5 zone will allow Greeks to move their houses — group kitchens, giant letters and all — off campus into their own neighborhood. This is a good start but more needs to be done to accomodate off campus fraternity and sorority housing.

To be sure, the new Greek zone is an achievement. Any one of the seven Greek organizations presently without any housing — not to mention on-campus Greeks who wish to move or Greek organizations who may colonize here in the future — are now free to establish a house in the zone west of Thurstin Avenue to the railroad tracks and from Pike Street to Columbia Gas of Ohio near Poe Road without receiving special zoning variances required before the R-5 specification.

The new Greek zone was developed as part of Bowling Green's 20-year master plan because the city recognized its responsibility to provide a place for University related housing.

Establishing the zone and applying it to land near the University are good ways to begin to provide space for off-campus greeks, but the city has a long way to go to follow-through on its promise to University students.

The newly-zoned space for Greeks is not nearly large enough to accomodate all the fraternities and sororities in search of off campus housing. Only a small part of the new zone is undeveloped, leaving little room for new structures to house Greeks.

City planning officials say the space allotted Greeks can be expanded if the need arises. Let's hope the council also sees fit to expand the R-5 zone, as the present space zoned is not adequate. City council members need to keep the fever that inspired them to assign R-5 to the new space in the first place and look around town for a few more places to put Greeks as well.

Under present zoning law, the only other property that may be used for Greek housing is S-1, planned residential, zoned land. Present S-1 regulations for Greek housing are so strict — requiring 60 feet of space in front of the building and one parking space for each bed — they make development impossible. Even if the council were to relax S-1 regulations, or grant exemptions to Greek house builders on a case by case basis, only a small portion of S-1 land is close enough to the University to be considered for Greek housing.

Greek Life Director Wayne Colvin and Interfraternity Council President Terry Michelitch have claimed the city's zoning regulations discriminate against Greeks. They do.

Council claims they have made off-campus housing available to Greeks by creating the R-5 zone and assigning it to land near the University. They have, but they need to do more.

More R-5 zones need to be created in larger undeveloped areas close to the University and the red tape surrounding Greek housing development needs to be minimized.

The city's pledge to provide space for University related housing is noble, but officials will have to do more than create a small token zone to fulfill their promise of fair housing.

Bush walks the Congressional tightrope

Budget plan not a complete cure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite new rules, new taxes and a new scoring system, all part of the five-year plan advertised as tough deficit control, the federal debt numbers are about to get worse, rising to record levels next year. They're supposed to get better later. But the deal President Bush called good medicine for the deficit problem is not a cure, only a first dose. That leaves both sides of the bargain with some explaining to do as the budget cycle begins again next winter.

campaign criticizing as inside-the-beltway arithmetic, in which reductions are figured against projected levels and so serve to limit future increases, not to cut from actual past performance.

Darman estimated the deficit for the current budget year will be between $250 and $300 billion when the books are closed next Sept. 30. For the year just ended, the deficit was $220.4 billion, just short of the record high of 1986. There will be new, almost certainly higher deficit projections in the budget Bush is to send to Congress by Feb. 4.

The new budget deal eliminates the system of annual deficit targets that were supposed to be enforced by automatic, across-the-board spending cuts. The targets are adjustable now, depending on circumstances. For the current budget year and the two to follow, the new process sets limits in three categories: domestic, defense and foreign aid. When spending exceeds the ceiling, automatic spending cuts would be triggered on all the programs in that category. That strengthens the administration hand in enforcing spending restraints because the Office of Management and Budget will be keeping score, and thus deciding when automatic cuts are warranted.

The new law also requires pay-as-you-go measures to offset any tax reductions or increased entitlement spending programs. It is an intricate process that comes with no guarantees.

"With legally binding spending caps and the new pay-as-you-go system, we may be able to break free, somewhat, from the consume now, promise to pay later approach," Darman said, hedging his forecast.

It sounded simpler and surer in the shorthand of the campaign.

Congress and the White House both left the impression that their five-year budget agreement charts the way out of chronic deficits. It took the better part of seven months, and in the process, according to budget director Richard Darman, "the political system seems to have exhausted [even disgusted] itself with its effort."

While nobody said the problem was solved, Bush and Democratic leaders said it had been tamed. And political rhetoric obscured the fine print of red numbers to come.

"It's cut about $492 billion over five years off the deficit; that's progress," Bush said shortly before the Nov. 6 elections. "And $350 billion of that was in spending cuts ... And we did put Congress — and this is the most important part of it — on a pay-as-you-go plan."

Some of those reductions are based on a system of counting that Bush had spent part of the

Student gives interpretation of Gulf crisis

Editor, The News

This letter is in response to a short-sighted letter to the editor by Edward Dougherty on Nov. 14. Ed condemns President Bush's latest "offensive" action in the Persian Gulf and states he will not fight because of his frail love for humanity. Ed seems to need a little enlightening.

Wars are usually not started to prove something or somebody right, they are usually started to stop something or somebody from doing something wrong. I think that it is quite obvious that what President Hussein is doing is wrong. If you don't do something about it then you are condoning it. Ed, your "frail" love for humanity doesn't seem to extend past the United States border. What about the people in Kuwait? Did they not lose their homeland, their freedom, their security — and some of their lives?! This is not even mentioning what Hussein's attempt to control the OPEC cartel is doing to the rest of the world. This is what most people fail to understand. Higher prices at the gas pump is only one of many places that affects the economy. Higher gas prices lead to higher food prices because of the added cost to deliver which means that those who could not afford much food for their family can afford even less now. That is if they still have a job left after the cut-backs in their company due to the added costs of heating, transportation and raw materials.

Where is your "frail" love now, Ed — when people are not able to buy food for their families, those without a job — these are the lucky ones. What about those being held hostage in their own homeland and those about to be killed to defend their right to be free? You better stick with English Ed because I don't think you would do too well in American studies.

Coughlin's sincerity questioned

Editor, The News

In his Nov. 14 "President's Pen" column, Undergraduate Student Government President Kevin Coughlin allowed the University community some insight as to what he wants for its future. While his utopian vision is certainly admirable, it made me wonder if Kevin actually intends to strive to make this vision reality, or if he is under the assumption that lip service about a better University community is really all he has to do.

Upon review of Kevin's record, one may wonder just how much of what he has to say is truly what he believes. While expounding on the idea that USG ought to be free from political parties, Kevin has actually advanced partisanship to new heights. Not only does one political party have a USG seat while the other is denied, Kevin introduced a candidate for Ohio's attorney general to a political science class — after identifying himself as a USG representative. Kevin also lined up a certain state representative [of the same political party as the candidate for attorney general] to speak at the USG retreat to Port Clinton in September.

While Kevin insists that he is an advocate of a discrimination-free University, he refused to support a USG resolution which would have protected the right of homosexuals to be in ROTC.

The USG faculty course evaluation booklets, touted by Kevin as one of USG's major accomplishments, is actually a classic example of poor planning and execution. When it only takes five student opinions of a professor to be included in the booklet, we must wonder about the representativeness of the evaluation booklet and how students actually feel about their teachers.

Finally, Kevin has pronounced to the student body time and again that he is for student rights and is angered by the treatment students receive from the permanent Bowling Green residents. Where is the action to back up these words? He was noticeably absent from the majority of Student Rights Activism Committee organizational meetings, yet managed to take credit for the protest march to the police station. And now that fall elections are over, he intends to have a major voter registration drive on campus, kicked off by the student rally held Nov. 27. Where was the effort in late September and early October when the events of East Merry were fresh in students' minds?

The reign of Kevin Coughlin has been marked by too little effort too late. He may claim to do all sorts of wonderful things for Bowling Green's student body — but how meaningful are they? And do they really have any impact? Your utopian vision sounds like a dream, Kevin. Maybe for you, that's all it ever has been.

purification one, which provides water to soldiers in the field for drinking, cooking, showers and laundry.

Ross said his unit is not a combat unit, but they are trained for the possibility of war.

"We've set up a defense perimeter around my base before, dug fox holes and are trained with weapons," he said. "We're not offensive, we're defensive — we supply troops up front."

"I'm not scared or at least I don't want to admit it," he said. "Maybe when I get over there it will hit me."

His National Guard unit destination is unknown, but Ross said he has heard rumors they will first be deployed to a base in Wisconsin for training prior to shipping out to the Gulf region.

"We're definitely going overseas, but I won't know my exact destination until arrival," he said.

An Associated Press story Tuesday said the 641st unit will report to duty Thursday and then go to Fort Knox, Kentucky. They eventually will go to Saudi Arabia.

Before leaving Ross said he tried to contact his professors, but was only able to inform his English professor about the situation.

Since he will not be at the University to take the proficiency in English, he said his professor informed him he would have to retake the course.

Also, to obtain any refund from the University, he said he will have to send the Veteran's Administration office at the University a copy of his activation orders.

Even though Ross was able to spend Thanksgiving with his family, he said he will not be back for a minimum of six months.

"I won't be here for Christmas," he said. "I don't think I'll be back for a year or two — unless I would be injured or killed."

"I really don't want to go because of school, but I'm not going to cop out [go AWOL], I'm going to go and do my duty because I signed up and it's my responsibility."

Charles Ross, sophomore criminal justice major and member of the 641st Quartermaster Detachment of Covington, O.

One fear Ross said he has is dying from nerve gas and other chemical weapons because they cause a slow, painful death.

"I'd rather get shot than die from nerve gas, because you can't see the chemicals coming," he added.

Even though Ross's life changed within a weekend, he said he does not regret joining the service.

"I've always wanted to be in the Army and I have seriously thought about withdrawing from school and going active duty as a career," Ross said. "I enjoy it — I love the military."

Future plans include returning to the University to finish his education, he said.

One final piece of advice for current University students from Ross:

"Take care of yourself, do good in school. Maybe we won't go to war, but if we do, hopefully I won't see any of you over there. Be aware of the situation now before a possible draft is implemented because this can happen to anyone."

Editor's note: At press time, we were notified of the official activation status of Ross's unit, the 641st Quartermaster Detachment Army National Guard unit of Covington, O.

French culture the focus of summer study abroad

by Morrella Raleigh
writer

University students can study in France next summer through a program sponsored by the College of Business Administration in order to gain a whole new view of the world.

The Summer Study in France program takes place June 20 through July 24 at the Nantes Graduate School of Management in Nantes, France.

University professor of economics Charles Chittle, director of the program, said, "This will be the 12th year of the program."

"It offers students the opportunity to learn about other cultures."

Students with any major can participate, but they must be in good standing, Chittle said.

Students can earn six credit hours by participating in the program.

The classes offered will cover the European business and economic community, according to Panayiotis Pissarides, Chittle's graduate assistant.

The classes will be taught in English by European professors.

"This is a great experience for students because they can learn more about Europe and the European economic community," Pissarides said.

The program costs $1900, which includes tuition, fees and housing with a French family, Chittle said. Payment will be due in the middle of the spring semester and financial assistance is available to those who qualify.

"The program is designed to enable students to do a lot of independent travel, Chittle said.

"It combines classroom learning with outside learning."

During the fifth week of the program, students will have the opportunity to visit Brussels, Belgium, which is the European economic headquarters, according to Pissarides.

Carmen Magaden, a graduate business student, participated in the program last summer and recommends it to students.

"It was a lot of fun," Magaden said.

Nina Kamal, a sophomore international studies major from Toledo, plans to participate in the program.

"I'm really looking forward to going. I want to participate so I will be prepared to work abroad," she said.

Chittle said 22 students from Nantes are at the University this semester.

Arnaud Barres, a business student from Nantes, said students should not be intimidated by the language barrier.

"Everybody in the school speak some English," Barres said.

Frederic Valion, a marketing student from Nantes, said, "Students [who participate] will definitely see a different life. It will raise consciousness of European life."

Chittle said The Ohio State University, University of Rhode Island and University of Denver will also be participating in the program. Students from other schools may participate by applying through the University.

Kevin Turner speaks to a crowd of about 110 in Lenhart Grand Ballroom during the All-American Rally Tuesday night. The rally was held to increase student-voter registration and to encourage students to voice their concerns.

Rally

"There was more aggression placed on [the East Merry and Frazee parties] than football tailgates and the tractor pull," he said. "If I had a party police would not forcibly enter my home without a warrant."

USG vice president Linda Schnetzer emphasized positive contributions made by students to the city.

"The Greek community raised over $52,000 for local charities [last year]," she said.

Schnetzer also said local businesses would not exist without the students.

"The city of Bowling Green could not survive without the University — it's a fact," she said.

USG president Kevin Coughlin finished the rally, stating the city did not listen to student concerns because few were registered to vote.

"I wonder if the city forgot the students of Bowling Green outnumber [city] voters by almost two to one," he said. "[City officials] have no obligation to us because students do not vote, but we can change that," he said.

Throughout the rally, deputy registrars were available to register any interested students, and Coughlin said the final count of new registered voters would be a good indication of the rally's success.

"One of the most important things we will gauge the rally on is the number of people who register to vote," he said.

Students who had trouble with police in the past were also encouraged to fill out a form supplied by USG during the rally. The forms will be used to show specific examples to the police when students have had problems with police actions.

Bush, Salinas close talks

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — President Bush said Tuesday the U.S. economic slowdown could make it harder to obtain a free trade pact with Mexico, but pledged to "write a new page in North American history" with his veto pen if necessary to stop protectionist bills.

Bush wrapped up a two-day state visit and talks with President Carlos Salinas de Gortari with new agreements on oil investment, border crossings and on educational exchanges.

In a joint statement issued shortly before the president headed home from this northern Mexico industrial city, Bush and Salinas proclaimed "excellent cooperation" between their governments and reiterated a mutual call for a free-trade agreement.

In a key agreement, the pair resolved a U.S.-Mexican disagreement over the question of whether Mexico's vast oil industry should be open to U.S. or other foreign investment. Salinas has insisted the state-run and subsidized oil industry be exempt from the free-trade talks.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady told reporters here that the dispute has been eased by Mexico's agreement to allow an Export-Import Bank loan for drilling and supplying equipment in Mexican oil exploration.

Brady said that, "for the first time, the services of American companies will be welcome and sought after with regard to drilling and other supplies in the Mexican oil fields."

Brady said the agreement will continue to prohibit U.S. companies from owning direct interests in Mexican oil production.

The two presidents also announced that both governments would work toward opening nine new border points-of-entry to ease congestion at crossing stations and to make it easier for both Americans and Mexicans to travel across each other's borders.

Roman Popadiuk, a White House spokesman, said "both the United States and Mexico favor having new and additional ports of entry between the two countries where feasible, and after study and approval, by both sides." He said specific sites for the nine new crossings had not been determined.

"This agreement will unleash powerful energies in both economies," Bush said in a toast at a state luncheon. "We're not on an easy path, but I believe we're on the right one."

Salinas said the free trade pact would help Mexicans find jobs in their own country.

Acting coach Arch Hasler gives instructions to members of the University cheerleading squad during a recent basketball game.

Cheerleading team utilizes member's coaching ability

by Melissa Kravitz
writer

Adapt and overcome — that's exactly what the University cheerleaders had to do last year when they were informed their coach, Paula Wright, was resigning.

Given the experience and talent of the squad, the athletic department decided not to hire a new coach.

Instead of hiring a new person who would first have to get oriented to the University and then to the squad, they decided to utilize the competent captains they already had.

Arch Hasler, previously co-captain with Deanna Peters, was appointed acting coach, and Peters is now captain of the squad.

Some squad members said Hasler's position as coach and cheerleader has made it easier to work together.

"Because he's also a squad member, we don't consider him just our coach," Elli Conrad, junior squad member said.

"Not much has changed, the only difference is that there isn't an outsider to critique our work. Arch steps back and watches us — and we all listen to him."

Hasler said the team's strong bond makes them easy to coach.

"The team is very mature; they adapt to any situation," Hasler said. "We're a closely meshed team."

Hasler has been on the squad for three years and said he knows what the athletic department expects from the squad.

Six female and six male starters plus two alternates make up the squad, whose season lasts all year, as the same squad cheers for football and basketball.

"They're a talented young group with a lot of potential," he said.

The squad believes the amount of work and effort they put forth often is overlooked, he said.

In addition to performing well on the field, one of their goals this year is to compete in the national cheerleading competition sponsored by the United Cheerleader's Association.

The squad practices a minimum of three times a week in the Student Recreation Center's combat room, in addition to practicing on their own.

"It's a volunteer organization, but probably one of the hardest courses they've ever taken," Hasler said.

"They may not feel their time and energy is noticed — but it is. If they stick together and keep progressing at the rate that they are, they can be one of the best squads in the nation."

Bookstores offer variety Accent: pleasure reading

by Diane White
writer

For University students who enjoy pleasure reading but do not enjoy the high prices of new books, two Bowling Green bookstores may be a welcome alternative.

Pauper's Books and Grounds For Thought buy used books and sell a wide variety of used books at reduced prices.

Leo Schifferli, owner of Pauper's Books, 206 N. Main St., said he carries about 175,000 books. He buys some books new if they are always requested, but about 99 percent of his books are used.

Schifferli said he tries to sell all of his books at a reduced price of either two-thirds the original price, or "if I get a special request for a book and order it from a distributor I usually buy from, I try and allow a 10 percent discount," he said.

Many of the big names among the college students are beat-generation writers and poets, Schifferli said.

His books are purchased from a variety of sources, he said.

"A lot of books people trade in for credit and I also buy them when I go on trips from other used book stores," he said.

Only 50 percent of his customers are college students — a fact he said is due to the store's distance from campus.

One thing Schifferli said he tries to stay away from is textbooks.

"The reason why I don't sell textbooks is because I am more interested in books as books rather than books as textbooks," he said.

Schifferli said he will either have the book someone is looking for or find it — no matter what it is.

Schifferli said he does not see other Bowling Green used book stores as competition, and hopes more will open in Bowling Green.

"Bookstores are never competitive, they're always complimentary. The more used book stores there are in town, the more book-type people will gravitate towards this location," he said.

Grounds For Thought, 174 S. Main St., opened less than a year ago and has an atmosphere not completely centered on books, said owner Sandy Wicks.

Grounds For Thought not only has books, but also has a coffee and pastry shop.

Wicks said she decided to open a coffee shop/book store because she liked the combination.

"I've always loved coffee shops and book stores so I decided to put the two together," she said.

Wicks' pricing policy is fairly simple — all books are half-off cover price.

"Many people bring in bags of their books and get credit. So when they want to buy a book, they can use their credit to buy the book," Wicks said.

Wicks said she believes one of the most important factors to consider when opening a book store is volume.

"I think that one of the keys to having a book store is volume. People come in a used book store and like to see a lot of books. As we have doubled our inventory, our customers have doubled," she said.

Wicks said every month Grounds For Thought features a local amateur's art throughout the store.

"Their art makes our store look pretty and it gives them a chance to advertise their work," Wicks said.

Wicks said the store also has poetry readings on the last Sunday of every month.

One thing Wicks said she has learned from being owner of Grounds For Thought is how large the reading population is.

"We [the Wicks family] are really pleased with the reading population. It's really encouraging to see how many people come in and are really avid readers — especially among young people," she said.

Melinda Kindsvatter, a senior vocal performance major, said Bowling Green needed a store like Grounds For Thought.

"I love Grounds For Thought — when I first arrived at college I wondered why there was no tea shop/book store. I've always wanted a shop with a bit of an intellectual air — yet cozy and friendly," she said.

Pauper's Books is open 10 a.m. — 6 p.m. every day except Sunday. Grounds For Thought is open from 8 a.m.-11 p.m. seven days a week.

Mock trial team places first in local tournament

by Greg Watson
staff writer

When a team loses its captain two days before a tournament, the team usually is not expected to contend, let alone win. The University mock trial team proved otherwise.

The mock trial team won the first place trophy in the mock trial tournament in Toledo on Nov. 17.

The team competed with ten other schools including Wright State University, the University of Cincinnati, and Central Penn State College in a series of automatic elimination mock trials. Of last year's members, only Eric See, Kelly Warner, and Charlotte Tennant returned, said Dennis DiMarzio, visiting legal studies professor and team coach.

Then, two days before the Toledo tournament, Tennant was called into active duty in the Middle East by the ROTC.

"It would have been easy for the team to panic under the circumstances," DiMarzio said. "But the team came through with a clutch performance."

Chuck Gollahan, a junior philosophy/pre-law major, said "We learned to work as a team and utilize our skills."

Because of the loss of Tennant, the team did not expect to win the Toledo tournament, but was pleasantly surprised when they did, Tammi Diehl, a senior sociology/pre-law major, said.

Kelly Wood, a sophomore interpersonal communications/pre-law major said "The Toledo tournament taught us how to compete, and how to accept winning with grace."

Working with professional attorneys familiar with trial procedures before the tournament also helped the team, Debra Marshall, a sophomore business/pre-law major, said.

The Toledo tournament was a large confidence builder bringing the team closer together, See, a junior criminal justice major, said.

DiMarzio was impressed with how rapidly the group of students grew from a "terribly inexperienced team" to a team with no personal conflicts, ego problems, or "too many chiefs."

Warner, a junior political science major who was a mock trial team member last year, said this year's team is closer and was able to learn trial procedures quicker than last year's team.

See and Warner won first place awards for best attorney, while Sweet and Gollahan placed first as best witnesses, DiMarzio said.

The mock trial team will go to the University of Dayton for the State Invitational Tournament Jan. 26, and then will go to Drake University to participate in the national tournament.

Ohio unit activated for desert operation

COLUMBUS (AP) — A military reserve unit in Covington was activated Tuesday and others in Toledo and Lorain were put on alert because of the crisis in the Middle East.

The activation of the Ohio National Guard's 641st Quartermaster Detachment in Covington brought the number of Guard units activated in support of Operation Desert Shield to four.

Nearly 500 Guard members from Ohio have been activated, the office of Ohio's adjutant general said.

The 641st, with about 55 members in Miami County community in Western Ohio, provides water for drinking, cooking, showers and laundry to soldiers in the field.

Members of the 641st are to report for duty Thursday and then go to Fort Knox in Kentucky. They eventually will go to Saudi Arabia, the Guard statement said.

The Guard's 160-member 323rd Military Police Company in Toledo was placed on alert.

Under the alert notification, the unit commander may call in up to 10 percent of the unit's members to prepare equipment and notify other members.

The Army Reserve's 316th Medical Detachment in Lorain also was placed on alert.

The helicopter "medivac" unit is composed of about 50 officers and enlisted personnel based at the Lorain County Regional Airport. It received the alert notice Friday, said Carol Massar, spokeswoman for the Fourth Army headquarters, near Chicago.

The unit held two days of training last weekend, a week ahead of schedule. Maj. Ernie Hollo, commander, described the unit as a "flying ambulance," trained to evacuate injured and wounded.

War plans in Gulf debated

Urgency of military action questioned by Senate Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats on Tuesday challenged President Bush's Persian Gulf policy, questioning the immediate need for offensive military action to oust Iraqi forces from Kuwait and demanding a greater role in the crisis.

"The question is not whether military action is justified. It is," said Sen. Sam Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which began several days of hearings on the gulf crisis. "The question is whether military action is wise at this time and in our own national interest."

The hearings were called in reaction to Bush's decision to send an additional 200,000 troops to the gulf to provide an "offensive military option." With the administration seeking U.N. approval for the use of force in the gulf, some committee members said the president also must make the same request of Congress.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, in remarks to newly elected House Democrats, underscored the point. "I would personally want to have some assurance from the administration that no action would be taken prior to this Congress meeting, or it would be necessary to think seriously about calling in the previous Congress," he said.

The opening day of the session also was marked by the conspicuous absence of the administration's top military officials — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The two will testify Monday morning.

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr., said the policy change to underlie a U.S. attack capability undermines the nation's attempts to maintain international support for the sanctions "by declaring, through its own word and those of the imminent U.N. resolution, that our patience was almost spent."

Committee member Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., declared, "If ever there is a case for giving peace a chance, this is it."

Yet another panel Democrat, Alan Dixon of Illinois, suggested that the administration's "priorities are slightly misplaced."

"To the best of my knowledge it is the United States Congress that declares war for the United States," Dixon said.

Republican John McCain of Arizona declared, "The issue is not prerogatives, it is patriotism."

John Glenn, D-Ohio, said the administration has yet to make its case for military attack in the gulf, arguing that the nation "cannot get into a war that is not fully understood and backed by the American people. We need more than sound-bite justification."

Fisher leads election race

CLEVELAND (AP) — Democrat Lee Fisher on Tuesday led Republican Paul Pfeifer by 1,452 votes in the Ohio attorney general race with the release of final election results from two counties.

The results from Cuyahoga and Mahoning counties more than tripled Fisher's lead from a day earlier, when he led by 442 votes, according to an Associated Press tally.

Most of the increase resulted from ballots in Cuyahoga County, the state's largest county, which includes Cleveland.

Fisher led Pfeifer by 0.04 percent of the vote from nearly 3.36 million cast in the Nov. 6 general election.

Lucas and Mahoning are the only counties among 88 in the state that have not yet reported final, official vote counts. Mahoning County, however, provided final, unofficial results.

"I am not declaring victory today, and I want to make that clear," Fisher told reporters at his law office. "Today is a declaration that things look very good."

Pfeifer said there may have been enough tabulation error in the vote count statewide to provide for a swing to his favor in a recount.

The race for attorney general likely would not be settled for several weeks if there is a recount.

A recount is required by law if the margin of victory is below 0.25 percent. Fisher led by about 900 votes in the unofficial count released the day after the election.

Increases in the official count stemmed largely from ballots cast under a new state law permitting voters who did not meet the 30-day residency requirements to vote at county boards of election. Also counted were absentee ballots from overseas.

"I'd rather be on the fat side of this than the thin side, obviously," said Pfeifer, speaking from his law office in Bucyrus. "Between election night and the official canvass, there appears to be at least 1,500 votes worth of error."

He said he believes he could still win.

After the election, Fisher asked the 88 boards of election to separate the votes cast at county boards under the new law to make vote challenges easier.

'Recession is here' as economy spirals

by John D. McClain
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Three out of four of the nation's top business economists believe the United States has skidded into a recession, in part because of the rapid rise in oil prices following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"Recession is here," the National Association of Business Economists said Tuesday in a report on its canvass of 51 professional forecasters.

The report reflects a sharp jump in pessimism among the economists, who just three months ago still felt the country could avoid an imminent downturn.

"We think that the recession began in the fourth quarter and that the [Persian Gulf] oil-price shock played a major role in ending the expansion," Richard Rippe, NABE president and chief economist with Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., told a news conference.

"In our view the economy was on a slow-growth track prior to the invasion of Kuwait" Aug. 2, Rippe said. "That slow-growth track has been converted into a mild recession outlook by the oil-price shock that has developed."

In a survey following the Iraqi invasion, only 45 percent of the forecasters said a recession either had begun or was imminent. Just a year ago, 62 percent of the forecasters predicted the economy would escape a recession through 1992.

Two other reports Tuesday provided further gloomy news about the economy:

■ The Commerce Department reported the U.S. trade deficit jumped 28.9 percent in the July-September quarter, to $29.75 billion, the highest imbalance in a year.

Imports rose 5 percent to a record $125.91 billion, as the Persian Gulf crisis drove up the cost of oil. Exports, damped by falling overseas demand for American farm products, fell 0.6 percent to $96.16 billion.

■ The National Association of Realtors said October sales of existing homes fell 4.7 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.02 million, the lowest rate since February 1985, when it was 2.95 million.

Realtors' president Harley Rouda said reports of persistent budget deficit woes, economic sluggishness nationwide and the threat of war have created psychological barriers that are blocking home sales.

Despite the gloomy news, Rippe, the president of the business economists, said any recession "should be shallow by historical standards." The median estimate of the forecasters is for economic growth to decline 1.0 percent in this quarter and 0.8 percent in the next.

While two-thirds of the group believe the downturn will last two quarters or less, 29 percent said it would continue for three quarters. Four percent said it would continue for 12 months. None felt it would last beyond a year.

Falcons prepare for road test

Akron attempts to avenge last year's loss to BG in Anderson

by Chris Miller
sports writer

Men's basketball coach Jim Larranaga is looking at tonight's 7:30 p.m. contest with Akron as a chance to see some different things.

They may not all be good things, though. "Every game presents different problems and obviously the first one is that we're going away from home," the fifth-year coach said. "Secondly, we'll be playing a team that is very quick and athletic and will look to execute their half-court offense a lot."

So far, BG has played two exhibition games and the season opener Monday against Heidelberg. All have turned into bonafide BG blowouts and all have seen BG use its swarming defense and potent offense to account for the wins.

Yet, tonight poses one problem the Falcons haven't had to deal with so far.

Forget the quick, athletic players. Each club, even Division III Heidelberg, had a couple of decent players. And toss out the fact that BG hasn't gone up against a squad trying to slow BG's frantic pace down. Each opponent has tried, in some small way, to keep BG from running all over Anderson Arena.

No, the big change Larranaga has to deal with tonight is in the setting.

Akron, 16-12 last season, plays in the cozy confines (6,250) of James A. Rhodes Arena. But more than that, they win in Rhodes Arena.

Last year's Zips squad finished 13-2 at home and presented a tough foe for BG before the Falcons escaped with a 77-71 win in Anderson Arena.

"We had a terrific game with them last year," Larranaga said. "Both teams played well, but we were fortunate to come out on top. This year, I expect pretty much the same thing from them."

The Zips will return three starters, but lost second-leading scorer Mark Alberts (15.7) last week to a broken leg. However, Akron has added the service of junior college All-American Roy Coleman. Coleman, a 6-4 guard, averaged 25.1 points per game for Owens Tech last year.

Akron is 0-1 after dropping a 61-54 decision to Kansas State. Albert Jones, a 6-5 senior forward, led the Zips with 21 points and nine rebounds. Point guard Brian Dawson added 12 points in the loss.

In the Zips, Larranaga does see some similarities to a couple teams BG will face the last half of the season. "I think it's good that we're playing (Akron)," Larranaga said. "They are pretty similar to many of the teams in the league in that they try to control the tempo with a half-court offense."

The Falcons placed five people in double figures in the 116-80 rout over Heidelberg. Senior point guard Clinton Venable scored 23 to lead three starters in double figures.

Senior forwards Joe Moore (17) and Steve Watson (12) also hit double digits, while reserve guards Michael Huger and Billy Johnson hit for 12 and 11, respectively.

Although BG out rebounded Heidelberg 49-46, Larranaga wasn't exactly pleased with the effort under the boards.

"I was disappointed that we didn't rebound better," he said. "They got a lot of offensive rebounds we thought should've been ours. It's important that we improve on our rebounding if we want to be successful."

Women face ISU in home opener

by Jamie Joss
sports writer

In only the infant stages of a rivalry, the Bowling Green-Illinois State women's basketball series has already proven that homecourt advantage is a crucial factor.

The inaugural contest of the series saw the Falcons take advantage of their home floor to down the Redbirds 81-73.

Last year, after the Falcons lost Jackie Motycka, Paulette Backstrom, and Megan McGuire, ISU caught BG in a transition year and used the friendly confines of Redbird Arena to defeat the Falcons 94-72.

The series travels back to Anderson Arena for tonight's home opener with the Falcons looking to redeem themselves after last year's setback.

"It's been a good rivalry and Illinois State is going to be a challenge," BG coach Fran Voll said. "They have had one of the best programs for the last 10 years."

The Falcons are 1-0 after a victory over Dayton Saturday and was the 17th win in their last 21 games dating back to last season.

BG has won three of its last four home openers including last year's 79-43 victory over Morehead State.

It's hard to judge who will be relied on for scoring, but sophomore center Andrea Nordmann gave a glimpse of improvement from her rookie campaign against UD, scoring 17 points and grabbing 10 rebounds.

Senior point guard Wanda Lyle scored 16 and had six assists, and senior Traci Gorman chipped in with 10 points and four rebounds.

The Redbirds are returning four starters (three seniors) and seven letterwinners from last year's 22-10 squad that finished sixth in the 1990 NIT tournament.

ISU competed in the 1989, 1985, and 1983 NCAA tournaments and advanced to the second round 1989.

This year, the Redbirds have jumped out to an early 2-0 start, including wins over in-state rival Illinois (78-73) and 1990 NCAA participant California (81-61).

ISU coach Jill Hutchinson enters her 20th season with a record of 344-190, having coached the Redbirds to three straight 20-plus win seasons in which they finished first or second in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference.

"We were pleased to win both games, especially this early in the season," Hutchinson said. "I think with this being our first road trip, it makes the game very important."

Headlining the Redbird lineup are 6-0 senior forward Cindy Kaufmann (14 points per game and three rebounds per game) and 6-4 sophomore center Caryn Brune (13 ppg, 9.5 rpg).

In their first two games the Redbirds have nine players who are averaging 10 minutes a game.

"They have very good team balance," Voll said. "Kaufmann is a power forward who can also shoot the three-point shot. She is probably their best player, but Brune is also a concern inside."

In addition, ISU returns sophomore off guard Tami Baalke (16.5 ppg, 5.5 rpg), senior small forward LuAnn Robinson (12.0 ppg, 6.0 rpg), and senior point guard Shannon Fulton (8.0 ppg, 3.0 rpg).

Swimmers try to upend Buckeyes

by Kevin Cummings
sports writer

No respect.

Rodney Dangerfield doesn't get any, nor does the Mid-American Conference—at least not from the Big Ten.

The women's swim team will be out to change Ohio State's opinion of the MAC today as they battle the Buckeyes at 4 p.m. in Cooper Pool.

"There is no rivalry between Bowling Green and Ohio State per se," head coach Brian Gordon said. "The rivalry is the MAC versus the Big 10."

"The Big 10 doesn't respect the MAC, and it really gets our kids fired up."

It will take an all-out effort on BG's behalf to topple the Buckeyes (2-0). After four Big 10 titles and Top 20 rankings every year in the 1980s, OSU currently stands 18th in the country.

The key to a Falcon victory will be to take advantage of OSU's lack of depth, an element that Gordon feels is not insurmountable.

"The Buckeyes' strengths are in their diving program, which is traditionally one of the best in the nation, and the exploits of Susan Gottlieb, who is an All-American in three events."

"We need to focus in on their strengths and weaknesses," Kim Faircloth said. "We match up very well with them."

"We are ready for Ohio State," Gordon said. "Even if they do win an event, we're looking to fill the number two and three spots."

Although OSU is clearly the favorite to win the meet, they also carry the burden of the pressure to win. A loss to BG could seriously tarnish the school's image and hurt future recruiting.

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals rookie receiver Reggie Rembert was charged with alcohol intoxication after he drove off a road and smashed his car into a sewer pipe early Tuesday, police said.

Police Chief Don Delaney said police opted to charge Rembert with the misdemeanor offense of alcohol intoxication, rather than the more serious charge of drunken driving, because the officer did not see Rembert driving. The officer arrived after Rembert was off the road and already out of his car, police said.

"It's the officer's discretion on a charge like that," Delaney said. "In this case, it's a single-car accident, nobody else was involved."

Rembert, 23, was not injured in the 4 a.m. crash in this northern Kentucky town near Cincinnati, police said. He was taken to the Kenton County Jail in Covington, booked and then released on his recognizance.

Rembert, who lives in nearby Crescent Springs, can resolve the matter by paying a $67.50 fine or can contest the charge in Kenton County District Court if he believes he is innocent, a jail spokesman said. No court date was set.

Police said a sobriety test performed on Rembert at the crash scene indicated he had been drinking. Delaney said he did not know the specific results of the blood-alcohol test, and the officer who had administered it had gone off duty.

Rembert, who starred at West Virginia University, signed with the Bengals on Aug. 29 after the New York Jets were unable to sign him and traded him to Cincinnati for linebacker Joe Kelly and reserve offensive lineman Scott Jones. Rembert has had a leg injury and hasn't played for the Bengals yet this season.

Hockey team lands four recruits

by Steve Easton
sports writer

The Cleveland Connection has struck Bowling Green again as the Falcon hockey program recently signed four players, including two from Cleveland suburbs, to national letters of intent.

The signings came during the National Collegiate Athletic Association's early signing period of Nov. 14-21. It is the first year schools have been able to sign recruits early.

Forwards Brian Holzinger and Tony Prpic, defenseman Greg de Vries, and goaltender Nathan Cressman have agreed to play with BG next year.

"All four recruits are very well known on a national level," BG head coach Jerry York said. "Their decision to attend Bowling Green really solidifies the future of the program. This class is small number wise but features quality both academically and athletically." Holzinger and Prpic are natives of Parma, O. and Euclid, O., respectively, which will bring the number of Cleveland residents on the Falcon roster to four.

Sophomore center Brett Harkins and freshman defenseman Aris Brimmanis are both residents of the Cleveland suburbs.

York

"The Cleveland area has made great strides concerning hockey talent in the last couple of years," York said. "The impact of the three Division I hockey programs in Ohio (BG, Ohio State, Miami) has had a large effect on youth hockey in Ohio."

Holzinger is considered to be one of the top five recruits in the country and chose BG over Michigan State, Wisconsin, and Michigan.

He currently is playing center in his second year for the Detroit Junior Red Wings of the North American Junior A Hockey League (Tier II). Through Nov. 5, Holzinger, 5-11, 175, was the NAJHL's second-leading scorer with 14 goals and 15 assists for 29 points in 10 games. Holzinger is the only 18-year old on the team.

Before playing with the Junior Red Wings, Holzinger led Padua High School to state championships in his freshman and sophomore seasons.

"We think Brian is an outstanding prospect for our team based on his puckhandling skills and skating ability," York said. "His quickness will be a real plus as he develops in the CCHA (Central Collegiate Hockey Association)." Prpic, 17, is playing for Culver Military Academy in Indiana where freshman Aris Brimmanis played last year. The 6-4, 200 winger was chosen to the United States Select 16 and 17 squads the past two seasons.

"Tony's skill level really impresses us," York said. "His ability to handle the puck will be a tremendous asset to the team."

Cressman and de Vries round out the Falcons recruiting class.

Cressman, 6-1, 175, plays for the Waterloo Siskins in the Midwest Junior B Hockey League.

Cressman, 17, was named the MJHL's co-"Rookie of the Year" in 1989-90 after posting 3.85 goals against average with Kitchener.

"Nathan is a goaltender with good size," York said. "He was a dominant player in games we watched him play in."

De Vries, 6-2, 195, plays for the Stratford Cullitions which is in the same league as Cressman.

"Greg is a 17-year-old with all the necessary skills and size to be a top player in the CCHA," York said. "He moves the puck well and combines the offensive and defensive game into a solid package."

Ice Chips: The Falcons' 5-1 victory over Western Michigan Friday was BG's 10th straight at the Ice Arena dating back to Jan. 19 last year against Michigan State...Defenseman Aris Brimmanis (knee) and center Jim Solly (shoulder) are healthy and practicing this week...Goaltender Angelo Libertucci's performance against Western this weekend earned him CCHA Player of the Week honors for the first time in his career...Libertucci's 8-2-1 record also gives him the league lead in goalie victories...35 former CCHA players have seen action in the National Hockey League this season. The Falcons lead the way with 11 followed by MSU with 10.

Surgery a success for BG's Flanagan

BG assistant hockey coach Terry Flanagan underwent what doctors termed a "successful" operation to remove a malignant brain tumor Monday.

The operation took place at University Hospital in London, Ontario.

Doctors aimed to remove at least 75 percent of the tumor prior to the operation.

Flanagan currently is in intensive care at the hospital and may be able to leave the hospital this weekend. He will return to his parents' home in Stratford, Ont. at that time.

During his recuperation, Flanagan will undergo chemotherapy and radiation treatments at the hospital to remove the rest of the tumor.

"The team was so excited when they heard the news," BG head coach Jerry York said. "It's such a high-risk operation, and he has a long battle in front of him with the chemotherapy and radiation."

Get well wishes may be sent to Flanagan's parents address at 38 Wood St., Stratford, Ont. N5A1L8.

Cavaliers continue Knicks' home woes

by Bill Barnard
AP sports writer

NEW YORK — Craig Ehlo scored 5 of his 21 points during a decisive 9-0 fourth-quarter run that gave the Cleveland Cavaliers a 107-102 victory over New York on Tuesday night, continuing the Knicks' home court woes.

The loss was the third straight at Madison Square Garden for the Knicks, who are 2-5 at home. Last season, they did not lose their fifth home game until March 6.

Brad Daugherty scored 27 points for Cleveland but fouled out with 6:08 remaining. Daugherty also was called for a technical on the play and the resulting free throws gave New York a 95-92 lead.

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 29 points, his high in two years with New York, and Patrick Ewing added 27.

NFL finally issues Olson verdict

by Barry Wilner
AP sports writer

NEW YORK — Two New England Patriots players and a former teammate were fined a total of $22,500 and the team was fined $25,000 today by the NFL for involvement in the alleged sexual harassment of a female reporter.

Zeke Mowatt was given a $12,500 fine, while Michael Timpson and Robert Perryman were each fined $5,000. In addition to the team fine, the Patriots were ordered to pay $25,000 for instructional materials on responsible dealings with the media.

No suspensions were given in the incident, which involved Lisa Olson of the Boston Herald.

The fines, levied by NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue, came after special counsel Phillip Heymann of the Harvard Law School submitted a 60-page report on the incident. Tagliabue concluded that "a serious incident occurred on Sept. 17 while Ms. Lisa Olson of the Boston Herald was interviewing cornerback Maurice Hurst in the Patriots' locker room. The incident involved misconduct of certain Patriots' players that was degrading to Ms. Olson."

"Professor Heymann's report is thorough and balanced," Tagliabue said. "It treats the entire episode on a factual basis, not with speculation, rumor or rhetoric."

Mowatt and Timpson are still with the Patriots, but Perryman was released on Nov. 6 and now plays for the Dallas Cowboys.

Tagliabue called the players' actions and statements "completely uncalled for and improper. Mowatt's conduct involved both verbal and demonstrative actions. Timpson and Perryman encouraged the misconduct."

Tagliabue also concluded, based on Heymann's report, that the team's management failed to comply with NFL policy on equal media access "in that the club did not adequately supervise its players, did not adequately investigate and resolve a serious incident of misconduct in the club's locker room and appeared to condone the misconduct of the Patriots' players."

In a letter to Patriots owner Victor Kiam, Tagliabue reiterated "my strong belief that the Patriots' organization and its players have learned a hard lesson from this episode and that everyone involved will best be served if this controversy now comes to an end without further recrimination."

Olson alleged that a player stood at her side, naked, and "said in a low voice, 'Here's what you want.'"

"She did not see who the person was, and we cannot conclusively identify the person."

"Other players were laughing and some shouted, 'Make her look, make her look.'"

The report said that Timpson, who denied making any of the remarks, was one of those shouting encouragement.

"Moments later," the report said, "Olson saw Mowatt on the scale (by Hurst's locker, where she had been positioned). According to a number of players, he turned toward her and said, 'You're not writing, you're looking.'"

"He smiled and purposely displayed himself to her in a suggestive way. Laughter erupted and shouts from the players continued, especially, 'Is she looking?'"

James Oldham, Patriots director of media relations, quickly moved toward the scene while Olson, "embarrassed by Mowatt's actions, quickly lowered her head and continued her interview."

"Mowatt's account of the same period is not credible," the report said.

Several more players separately walked nude past Olson on their way to the shower. "We believe Olson's account that two or three players whom we cannot identify paused and 'modeled' themselves briefly by her in some fashion," Heymann reported. While Olson tried to continue the interview of Hurst, Perryman "stood up, nearby but unseen by Olson and — according to one viewer — 'adjusted' his genitals and — according to another (viewer) shook his hips in an exaggerated fashion, eliciting further laughter."

"Perryman denied to investigators any involvement in the incident," the report said.

Heymann also found that nobody tried to "bring the humiliating activity around Lisa Olson to a stop."

"Finally, according to Olson, she felt she could not take any more and abruptly ended her meeting with Hurst." Oldham described her as "very distraught, she couldn't see straight" as she left the scene.

After she left, Heymann reported, Perryman said to the players present "If the kitchen is too hot, get out."

See the future.
Use a condom.

Swimming

"There is no pressure on us to win," Faircloth said. "They're in the Big 10, which is supposedly big time. They feel they have to beat us."

"Our women are ready to give it everything they have," Gordon added. "They are mentally and physically prepared, and will simply lay it on the line."

Just as homecourt advantage is worth three points in basketball, Gordon believes swimming in their own pool is worth 25 points to the Falcons.

The Falcons will use their usual consistency and hard work ethic to try and improve their 5-1 dual meet record. The hard work has paid off thus far for BG as they have outlasted most of its opponents.

"If Ohio State does win the meet, they'll leave this building knowing they swam a great race," Gordon said.

"This is our biggest dual meet of the season," Faircloth said. "It will really mean a lot to win."

Fatman by John Boissy

WE INTERRUPT OUR STORY
FOR A BRIEF MESSAGE FROM THE ARTIST...
GOOD AFTERNOON, THE
STAFF AT JEB. TOONS
WOULD LIKE TO APOLOGIZE FOR THE MISTAKE IN YESTERDAY'S STRIP!
THE CAPTION SHOULD HAVE SAID "TURN
NEWSPAPER HORI-ZONTALLY TO GET
WE NOW RETURN
YOU TO THE CARTOON IN PROGRESS!
STAR BLECH
THE NEW CREW (WAVE OF THE FUTURE)
MR. FLUSHER, RAISE THOSE DAMN
SHIELDS! MR. DITTO, SCAN FOR ANY DAMN LIFE FORMS!
MR. DORF, OPEN A DAMN
HAILING FREQUENCY...
'ALIEN SHIP, THIS IS CAN'T
SHAWN-LUC RECAN, OF THE STARSHIP ENTERPRISE...'
heh, heh:
SORRY
ABOUT THAT!
